

OUR Optical Department

will from this day on be under the direct charge of MR. ARTHUR N. SANFORD a graduate of the Philadelphia Optical College, and all work will receive his closest attention.

The accurate fitting of Glasses to correct all errors of refraction will continue to be our special aim, though no part of this most necessary work will suffer from the slightest neglect.

As we grind all manner of complicated lenses in our own workshop, the advantage to you of receiving your glasses within twenty-four hours after receipt of the prescription cannot be over estimated.

Recent imports of Lemaire, Bardou and the wonderful TRIEDER BINOCULARS places our stock of Optical Goods at the very top. The Trieder Binocular, having many times the magnifying power of the ordinary Marine Glass, together with compactness, recommends it as the finest glass for every use, where the magnification of objects is desired. We will be glad to show the difference, and convince you of the above fact.

Second Performance of Janet Waldorf Troupe.

A FINE REPRODUCTION GIVEN

Excellence of Interpretation by the Star—
Correct Reading—Work of the Support.

Miss Janet Waldorf's second performance at the Hawaiian Opera house last night more than fulfilled the prediction that the young American actress had the genius and power to portray characters of the immortal bard. She outstripped as Rosalind anything that might have been expected of her by those who heard her in Twelfth Night.

Nothing could have been more finished than Miss Waldorf's reading of Shakespeare's lines. Her work shows on its face years of hard work and study. That she is a student and has had the best of instruction is apparent. Besides this, she is naturally an actress, graceful in every situation and rising to every climax without the slightest attempt at play acting. In fact in this particular her work is very refreshing.

As You Like It is especially adapted to bring out the genius and versatility of an actress. Rosalind is a great part and Miss Waldorf fully appreciated the opportunity. It has in it pathos—that of two girls, high born, being compelled to seek their own fortunes through the tyranny of an uncle. This point was well brought out in the first act.

Nothing could have been more delightful, ingenious and womanly than Rosalind's desire to have Orlando make love to her incognito in the forest of Arden. In fact, the work must pass without criticism. Miss Waldorf certainly has a great future and she shows by her painstaking work that success cannot come without great application. It will be of great interest to lovers of the histrionic art to see how this talented star handles the other great roles she is assigned to.

Mr. Wm. McVay as Jacques was at his best. There is no character in the play more adapted to fine work than this and Mr. McVay appreciated the opportunity. His reading was good, bringing well merited applause in the rendering of the seven ages.

If there was anything amiss in Mr. Norval McGregor's performance on the opening night he certainly made up for it by his rendering of Orlando. He was clear in his reading and ardent in his love-making.

Touchstone is a difficult part, but it must be said that for one so young Mr. Hernandez showed a fine conception of it. The main thing with Touchstone is knowing how to read his lines. This the young actor did very satisfactorily and his acting was good.

As might have been expected Miss Dow, as she is known to old theatergoers, now Mrs. Currier, played the part of Audrey in a manner that was particularly noticeable for its fine finish—that is to say, its perfect abandonment and ingenueness.

Mr. G. W. Bowman's Adam, Mr. Geo. Howard's Duke, and Mr. Herbert T. Shaw's Banished Duke, were all good. Miss Ellen Boyer as Celia and Miss Virginia Cranna as Phoebe did not have opportunity for the test of their real worth; nor did Mr. Francis Boggs as Oliver De Bois have the opportunity that will be given him later for his fine reading.

It must be said, and that without overpraise, that the balance of the Janet Waldorf company is very perfect, each one doing good work.

COL. EGBERT.

The death of Col. Egbert, of the 22d Inf., has resulted in several interesting changes and the promotion of an officer of the 23d Infantry to the command of Col. Egbert's regiment. Soon after the news of the death of the gallant Colonel reached Gen. Otis he cabled the War Department that he thought it would be a great source of gratification to the dead man's widow, who was in Manila, if his son, a private in his regiment, should be given a commission in the Army. This information was conveyed by telegraph to the President and he at once ordered the appointment of young Egbert as a 2d Lieutenant in his father's regiment, and this order was at once cabled to Gen. Otis. The Colonelcy of the 22d Infantry left vacant by Col. Egbert's death is to be filled by the promotion of Lieut. Col. John W. French, of the 23d Infantry, who was with that regiment in the field at Manila.
